

IN THE ABSTRACT

Please amend the abstract as follows:

The quality of recorded images with for example a high speed camera can be deteriorated by light modulation which is a consequence of for example gas-discharge lamps running at a lower frequency with respect to the camera.

————— A camera according to the invention provides light modulation removal means which tackle this problem by handling fields of the image different depending on the light modulation.

Fig. 1